The Santa Barbara Trust for Historic Preservation (SBTHP) is pleased to present our three-year strategic plan. This plan focuses our work with a shared vision and a clear path forward.

The planning process opened up the organization to input from internal and external stakeholders. Stakeholders are those the organization exists to serve, and any plan must begin with their voice. These stakeholders provided SBTHP with insight into how the organization could be a better partner and neighbor and how it could best contribute to a vibrant Santa Barbara. The planning process secured maximum engagement from the very people it serves: staff, board, and volunteers; donors; formal and informal partners; community leaders; tenants; and others. Over the course of four months, the organization hosted six community charrettes, listening sessions attended by a total of seventy-two internal and external stakeholders.

In addition to this effort focusing on the external dynamics of the organization, SBTHP senior staff and its Executive Committee conducted an analysis of the organization's strengths, weaknesses, opportunities, and threats and engaged in discussions focusing on internal operations. This included staffing, its board governance, finances, and budgeting processes, and fundraising. In preparation for designing the charrette questions, this team also examined the organization as a whole, determining what the organization is, who it serves, and how it does so. The Santa Barbara Trust for Historic Preservation is foremost the steward of its historical resources. However, the organization’s work goes much deeper than this mandate. It is a community-focused and -based history organization in the heart of Santa Barbara. It sees its stewardship role as one of education, of preservation, of connection, and informal advocacy for history.
MISSION

Stakeholder responses and work by the SBTHP strategic planning team led to the articulation of a new mission statement for the organization:

The Santa Barbara Trust for Historic Preservation stewards the past and present of the Presidio Neighborhood and inspires preservation advocacy throughout the County in order to create a more vibrant community.

VALUE STATEMENTS

Stakeholders expressed four core values for the organization. 1) Connection, 2) Welcome, 3) Education and History, and 4) Gathering. These principles inform the following Value Statements, which will underpin all of the organization’s work.
